Road to Freedom Tour 2019

Have you seen the photos that line the walls of our cafe? Have you been curious about them?

Tom Olin has been a social documentarian for over four decades, primarily capturing the unfolding history of much of the Disability Rights Movement. His understanding of and dedication to the Independent Living philosophy, his connection with the people driving the movement, and his years of participation as a person living with disability have developed into a unique journalistic style. These qualities add to Tom's ability to capture important people and moments. His images are uniquely important to the telling of the disability story.

Transitional Paths to Independent Living (TRPIL), the Western Pennsylvania Disability History & Action Consortium (WPDHAC), and the Pittsburgh Cultural Trust are excited to invite the public to Road to Freedom Tour 2019, a gallery event featuring the powerful photography of Tom Olin.

On April 11, 2018, from 4-6 pm at 819 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, take a provocative look at the disability rights movement. The space is accessible and in person description of photos will be provided. Light refreshments will be served.
