Canine Companions for Independence

Please join us on Thursday, August 29, 2013 to learn about Canine Companions for Independence (CCI). Carolyn Hrach will be at the TRIPIL office at 69 E. Beau Street in Washington from 2 pm – 3 pm to tell us how CCI and their graduate can assist people with disabilities. .

Founded in 1975, Canine Companions for Independence (CCI) is a non-profit organization that enhances the lives of people with disabilities by providing highly trained assistance dogs and ongoing support to ensure quality partnerships. Headquartered in Santa Rosa, CA, CCI is the largest non-profit provider of assistance dogs, and is recognized worldwide for the excellence of its dogs, and the quality and longevity of the matches it makes between dogs and people. The result is a life full of increased independence and loving companionship.

CCI trains four types of assistance dogs to master over 40 specialized commands: Service Dogs (for adults with physical disabilities), Skilled Companions (who assist children with disabilities), Hearing Dogs and Facility Dogs. After completing training, the dogs are teamed with a graduate during an intensive two week training period, Team Training. There is no cost to obtain a Canine Companion.

Call Michelle Loar to RSVP for this event.

Edith L. Trees Charitable Trust Awards Improve Quality of Life for Three Families

Thanks to Accessible Dreams' 2013 Edith L. Trees Charitable Trust grant, three families will be better able to care for their children.

Each family has a child who has outgrown their parents' ability to provide their activities of daily living. Using the money provided by Edith L. Trees Charitable Trust, Accessible Dreams remodeled all three bathrooms to make them accessible. By providing these modifications, the quality of life for Jacob, Gabe, and Christian will significantly be improved. The families are very grateful. They would not otherwise qualify for any type of funding to help offset the costs.

Edith L. Trees had a child with cognitive and physical disabilities, to whom she provided round the clock care in her estate. After her child's passing, she was kind enough to provide for other families with similar challenges by creating the Edith L. Trees Charitable Trust. Until Accessible Dreams was awarded $40,000, the Edith L. Trees grant funds had never been used for modifying homes for accessibility. We are fortunate to have received this funding for two years in a row.

The criteria for being award include a financial qualification as well as a household member with BOTH physical and cognitive disabilities. Applications for next year's grant will be accepted and placed on a waiting list. If funds are received for 2014, we will determine which applications qualify. For more information, please contact Lucy Rooth at 724-223-5115.

ACHIEVA is seeking pediatricians, family medicine physicians, general medicine physicians and internists in private practice willing to serve on a one-time focus group to discuss healthcare transition issues for individuals with disabilities and chronic/special healthcare needs. We are seeking to learn about best practices and barriers that occur when youth transition out of pediatric care into adult medical practices. If you are interested in learning more, please contact Melissa Allen with the Disability Healthcare Initiative at ACHIEVA (The Arc of Greater Pittsburgh)

Moving Toward Independence

Matt Berwick is TRIPIL's Youth Independent Living Specialist.

Why did you decide to move out?

First off, I'm driving 40 minutes each way to work every day. I'm tired of doing that! I'm 26 and I think it's time that I got my own place and started doing things when and how I want. Many of my friends live around Washington, and a lot of the social stuff that I do happens here in town, so it'd be a lot easier to be closer.

What are some of the concerns that you had about leaving your parents?

I was injured when I was 15, so I've never known anything but having my parents right there to support me with whatever. Being really alone for the first time is a little daunting.

How did your parents react when you told them?

They were a little shaken. They were supportive but they're my parents, so they're worried about me. They asked a lot of 'what if' questions-- 'what if your attendant doesn't show up for work?' was a big one. I think it was also hard for them to understand why I wanted to move out. I get along really well with my parents, and I'm close with my whole family, so it's a little weird. But it isn't about leaving my parents, it's about becoming more independent.

What challenges have you encountered?

Getting enrolled on the Waiver is a long process. It isn't hard, but it's a lot of waiting. I'm ready to do this now, but I have to wait for the enrollment agency to do their stuff. Dealing with my parents' constant questioning is hard too. Finding an accessible, affordable apartment in an area that I want to live is REALLY difficult. I'm probably going to have to compromise on some of the things that I'd like to have in order to get what I have to have.

What steps have you taken toward this goal?

Once I decided that I wanted to move, I had to tell my parents. Then I talked with some coworkers who had done this before to find out what the process entailed. I found out that my best plan would be to enroll on the Independence waiver in order to get my services. While I was working on that with Maximus, I was also working on building my informal support system—the people nearby who I could count on to assist me in an emergency.

What are you most excited about?

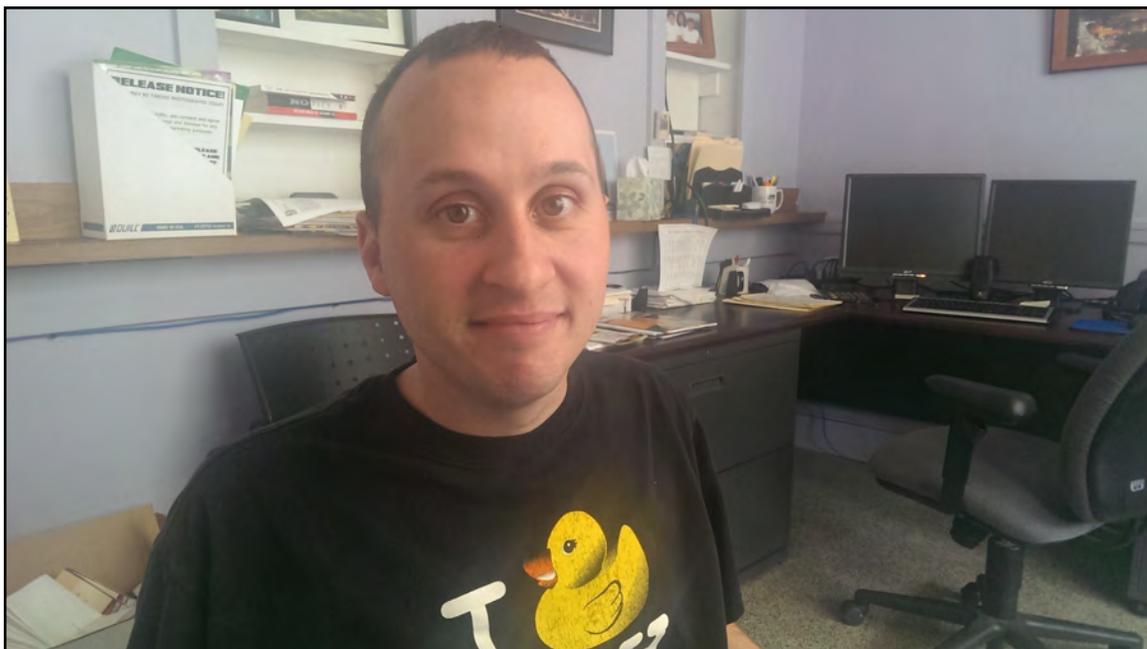

Being able to come home in the middle of the night without having to wake my parents.

What are you most nervous about?

This will be the first time I have had to live on a budget. Not only will I have to pay rent, but I have to eat and put gas in the car and all that.

Any advice?

Don't expect it to be easy. Find people who have already done this and talk to them about it, and listen to what they have to say. Just remember to persevere.
